Course Objective and Content

Course Objectives:	This course aims to bring out and nurture the students' sociological imagination in understanding social issues. The sociological imagination intends to show them the relationship of their personal biography with the social structure, in the socio-historical context that they are living in. It suggests that the personal problems they deal on a daily basis have strong ties to the larger social issues and thus have causes and origins that also lie outside the individual. One of the central aims of this course is to challenge the students to think more critically about social issues. It aims to teach them about social construction in relation to socio- historical contexts and thus critically analyze social life.

Course Content:	This course is an exploration of basic issues in sociology based on the current research and literature as well as fundamental social theories. It examines the linkages between social structures/institutions, culture and human experience. Students learn to follow major discussions around basic issues in sociology and critique popular discourses from a critical sociological perspective.

Learning Outcomes

The students who have succeeded in this course;

- 1) Students will have the ability to understand theories and theoretical perspectives in sociology and social sciences.
- 2) Students will gain the knowledge and skills to interpret social, economic and historical facts from a sociological perspective by rational thinking in social, economic and historical context.
- 3) Students can think critically when they evaluate the problems of sociology or other related fields, and can judge under a critical point of view theoretical and empirical studies conducted in those fields.
- 4) Students develop an interest in the problems of the modern societies and they can evaluate those problems within a wide perspective.
- 5) Students can apply their knowledge and research skills in interdisciplinary studies and can transfer those skills to other disciplines.
