Program Information

The International Relations department examines states, international organizations and non-state actors, which are the main actors in the international system, within the framework of all their characteristics, historical backgrounds and interactions. The structure and functioning of the institutions that constitute the main actors, in particular, foreign policy-making processes, political and economic relations constitute the main analysis topics. In order to analyze the multidimensional relations between states and other actors, is used from history to economy, from political science to law and from political history to philosophy. The primary aim of the Department of International Relations is to equip students with the basic knowledge and scientific point of view, and to educate them as experts with a scientific formation that can understand and interpret international developments analytically.
