Program Information

The Department of Civil Engineering accepted the first group of students in the Faculty of Engineering of Istinye University in the 2018-2019 academic year. In Civil Engineering undergraduate program, courses in the main axis are taught in the fields of structures, hydraulics, geotechnics and earthquake engineering as well as in the fields of transport, water resources and construction management. Our students specialize by taking elective courses in order to support their areas of interest and completing their undergraduate graduation projects in this area.
