

Film and Television (Master) (with Thesis) (English)
Master	TR-NQF-HE: Level 7	QF-EHEA: Second Cycle	EQF-LLL: Level 7

Program Information

The program enables students from various disciplines to transfer their knowledge and experience in their fields; It will include a dynamic educational process whose boundaries are not sharply defined.

In accordance with the non-one-dimensional nature of communication, it will be possible to benefit from mass communication theories, sociology, psychology and similar social sciences within this program and bring them together within theoretical education. Since the discipline of cinema and television studies is a crossroads discipline, it provides its students with qualified information in many fields such as psychology, anthropology, sociology, social psychology, philosophy and politics, enabling them to evaluate, interpret and make inferences about the events occurring around them more accurately.

In the Department of Cinema and Television Master's Program; it is planned to provide an interdisciplinary education with the contributions of faculty members who have gained competence in the basic disciplines of Communication Science and are specialized in both conventional and digital fields in the context of the media industry.